COURSE DESCRIPTION

The Honors English 11 course is composed of ten units. The first unit provides students with an overview of American literature and focuses on the elements of writing, grammar skills, and the establishment of a writing portfolio. The remaining five units provide an in-depth study of the important eras and literary movements of the American experience: Justice and Injustice, Individuality and Conformity, Nature and Nurture, Contentment and Disillusionment. Close analytical discussions of selected works from these periods allow the students to discover the concerns, ideals, and theories that have shaped American literature and thought.

By writing for a diversity of purposes (describing, narrating, reasoning, persuading), the students develop skills in developing a central idea with elaboration, using a clear voice amplified by specific words, and creating well-constructed sentences. Expertise in language usage and manipulation increases with the editing and proofreading of compositions. All pieces of a student's writing are stored in a Works in Progress folder from which each student selects pieces of writing for his or her writing portfolio. The contents of the portfolio illustrate how each student has grown and improved as a writer throughout the year.

The process and techniques of research engage the students in the assimilating of ideas from a balanced variety of sources. Students will take two Standards of Learning Tests for English: Writing and Reading/Literature and Research or a substitute test approved by the State Board of Education. Specific dates for the spring and summer SOL tests will be announced by the school.
